- ◆ Training will be cancelled if public schools are cancelled in the community in which the training is scheduled to occur. If the public schools are only delayed, then training will occur as scheduled.
- ◆ Staff scheduled for trainings should use their best judgment in deciding whether or not to attend the session. They should not attend, for example, if they feel that traveling to the training site would be too dangerous.
- ◆ In some cases, the instructor cannot travel, or the site may be closed and cause the training to be cancelled. For verification, log on to www.ddslearning.com after 7:15.

Fragrance Free

We increasingly hear from instructors and training participants who have environmental sensitivities or respiratory conditions such as asthma.

Reactions can range from symptoms such as headaches, congestion, nausea, and difficulty concentrating to more serious reactions such as difficulty breathing.

In consideration of those with respiratory and chemical sensitivities, ALL participants are asked to avoid wearing perfumed products to trainings.

This includes perfumes, colognes, aftershave, and scented hair care and body care products.

Your cooperation is appreciated.

Universal supports are systems and practices that are always in place – supporting every individual. They are intended to enhance quality of life by ensuring that all activities, plans, and routines reflect the preferences, needs, and goals of individuals who live or work in a setting.

This class will explore basic Universal Support strategies including:

- Adaptation of environments and routines to provide positive, preventative, proactive, and responsive environments for all individuals
- Formulating sensible expectations and demands for an individual receiving supports
- Person-Centered and Strengths-Based approaches to services and supports

Getting To Know You: Understanding Intellectual Disabilities & Life Experiences Of the People We Support

What does the term “Intellectual Disability” mean? What are some of its causes and results? What impact does intellectual disability – and the label have – on the life experiences of people who are supported through the DDS service system? What is our role in ensuring that people have opportunities to live full, healthy, and happy lives, like we all want for ourselves?

See Me as a Whole Person

What comes to mind when you hear the word “sexuality?” If it’s being sexually active, that’s only one aspect. Since birth, sexuality is part of our personality, influencing our self-esteem, how we perceive ourselves, how others see us, and how we interact with the world. Sexually interested or not, sexually active or not, our sexuality is part of who we are. The session will provide a working definition of “sexuality,” explore how it is an integral part of personality, and focus on how we can support people to develop a positive sense of their whole selves.

Date	Time	Location
10/14/16	9:00 – 1:00	DMH - Northampton

Walk in My Shoes

Using simulation exercises and discussion, participants will have the opportunity to reflect on the experience of living with a disability and consider how what they have learned can inform their work with people with intellectual disabilities.

Not Offered This Quarter

Respecting Diversity

How does a team remain effective if the team members do not understand each other? How can we communicate across our different backgrounds and life experiences to provide competent and effective services to individuals? What is “cultural competence?”

This class explores what we mean by “diversity” and how differences can both challenge and enhance a team. Participants will also have the opportunity to practice communication techniques of respectful inquiry and dialogue designed to increase team learning and effectiveness. This class is open to both state and provider employees. For state employees, it meets the requirement for one-day basic Diversity training.

Risk - Maureen Kirk, DDS C/W Regional Risk Manager, & Adam Holst, ABI MFP Risk Manager. The goal of risk management is to mitigate risk to a reasonable degree, while ensuring a person's rights and dignity are fully considered. This workshop will focus on the holistic approach to risk management, best practices in risk management, and common pitfalls which may arise as one addresses risk concerns. We will explore areas which are frequently discussed in risk management: forensics, competency, medical/mental health, substance abuse and exploitation.

Medical Advocacy & End of Life Issues - Betsy Johnson, Consultant in Health Care Ethics, will outline effective ways to address difficult treatment dilemmas, often emotional situations, including end of life issues using an interactive, case based format.

Neutral Writing

Reports, progress summaries, logbook entries, and email are among the communication tools we use on a regular basis. These are also legal documents for which the writer is accountable. Clear and factual writing that is accurate, understandable, and objective is critical. Neutral writing aims to eliminate bias and inaccuracy by avoiding vague or confusing language, or presenting personal opinions and conclusions as facts. Participants will practice using oral and written communication that is pertinent, complete, respectful, and easily understood.

An inevitable part of life is that we all have, and will continue to experience the devastation of a personal loss. In our role we are forced to not only deal with our grief over the loss, but support the people we serve through the process. This is no easy task and comes with a great emotional toll.

This workshop will allow participants to:

- Become more familiar with the grief process.
- Enhance your ability to relate effectively to the grieving person.
- Develop new skills to cope with personal feelings related to death and grief.
- Fine-tune skills in the helping relationship.
- Heighten your awareness of resources in the areas of death, dying, grief, and bereavement.

Knowing Our Place: Understanding Professional Boundaries in our Work

In our work as support staff, care providers and community companions, we spend countless hours working with people in their homes, communities and families. We develop close relationships and strong attachments to individuals, which usually helps us to do an excellent job helping them to live the best quality life possible. Within this close relationship, it is important for us to maintain a clear understanding of our professional role and the boundaries that role imposes on our interactions with people in our care.

Many support staff struggle to understand the “appropriate” level and types of sharing necessary to be effective in their role. What kind of touch is supportive but not too intimate? What kind of information should we share when individuals become interested in our lives outside of work? How do we address the idea that individuals consider us their “friends” when we know they lack other strong connections within their families or community? These are all legitimate and sometimes complicated questions that staff can have in the course of their professional human service career.

Goal of this training:

This session is intended to provide participants with a framework for thinking about professional boundaries in their work with people who have developmental disabilities. Our conversation will include suggestions for ways to express caring and concern while simultaneously maintaining professional standards of interaction with the individuals who use our services.

Learning Objectives:

- Define Professional Boundaries
- Recognize different kinds of “boundary crossings” and their potential impact.
- Identify the roles staff play or should play, in meeting the emotional and relationship needs of the people we support.

Skills & Understanding For Supporting People: Continued Learning

Multimodal Communication/Basic Sign Language

This is a four-week introductory course in basic sign language and multimodal communication strategies and how they are used to enhance interactions with individuals with developmental disabilities. A basic vocabulary of approximately 150 American Sign Language signs is introduced and practiced during group exercises. The emphasis is on developing skills in “key word signing” techniques as well as increasing awareness and use of a variety of modes including gestures, facial expressions, body movements and eye contact. This is a fun, interactive class that provides participants with skills that they can use immediately to improve interactions with the individuals they support. Class size is limited.

Participants must attend all four sessions to successfully complete the course.

*Please Note: This course does not teach the linguistics of ASL; word order, pronunciation and grammar are NOT covered. Also, aspects of American Deaf Culture are not discussed in detail.

Not Offered This Quarter

Applied Non Violence (ANV)

*Please Note: ANV can be physically demanding. If an employee is required to limit the movement of someone they support, then there is a reasonable expectation that the employee has the physical conditioning necessary to perform those duties. The instructor will do everything possible to ensure that the class is a safe environment in which people can practice the skills they need on their job to keep themselves, the people they support, and anyone else involved free from injury. The intention of the instructor is to improve the student's understanding and physical skills, but there is no claim to assessing the student's conditioning or physical fitness. It is the expectation that such requirements are reviewed and assessed at the point of hire or through supervision.

ANV Overview (4 Hours)

Introduction to the principles and techniques of the ANV program. Topics include: The dynamics of violence; the importance of observation, and both verbal and nonverbal communication in avoiding and de-escalating confrontation; basic skills of evasion and safety.

Teaching Sexuality In Everyday Life

Reminder: See Me as a Whole Person (see p. 14) is a pre-requisite for this class.

This class is designed to teach staff ways to use the images, words, and behaviors people might witness in everyday life, as opportunities to teach three basic concepts that are important in sexuality: knowing about your body; understanding relationship; and keeping yourself safe. The session uses popular images from television, movies, magazines, and “the mall” to present ideas for assisting people to tell what is real from what is fantasy, and to create positive, healthy, and safe ways of understanding and expressing their own sexuality.

“Ya Gotta Have Friends:” Teaching Social Skills In Context

Reminder: Relationships, Touch, and Professional Boundaries (see Page 16) is a pre-requisite for this class.

“Social skills” can be defined simply as how a person acts when s/he is with other people. Social skills are frequently identified as one of the learning needs of the people we support. This class will offer participants time and space to explore what social skills are, why they are important, and ways to teach about social skills to the men and women who use your services. The class will include small and large group activities and will introduce several different tools that can be used to support teaching and learning about good social skills.
